HELP Trends

Heck yeah, you can handle in-house printing!

Been toying with the idea of bringing your printing in-house, but still need some convincing? Hey, I get it. Taking on the task of producing your own collateral can be intimidating. So, I'm here to tell you that once you consider even a few of the advantages, you'll see it's time to put on the big boy pants and make the switch.

Easy and effective. Today, more and more printers are specifically engineered for in-house production and come complete with features designed to deliver the same quality output as a print shop, namely pristine type, vivid images and true-to-life color. User-friendly design software makes the creative component a do-it-yourself dream. Really, creating compelling, high-impact marketing materials yourself has never been easier.

More affordable than you think. When going outside for print jobs, many companies invariably print more than needed to take advantage of the best deal. What a waste. Bringing jobs in-house gives you the flexibility of printing what you need when you need it. Customize on the fly. Print "runs" so small they're not even called "runs". Oh, and then there's that consistent cost per page which, by the way, can be up to 50% less than a typical copy shop ticket. Now tell me again, what was it that was holding you back?

HELP Smart Solutions for the SMB

Print purist or multitasker?

Before you take on the challenge of weighing the benefits of inkjet vs. laser, wired vs. wireless etc., I suggest taking a look at the most basic of differences between printers today: single-function vs. multifunction.

Multifunction. Just like the name says, these multitasking marvels perform many functions and with that offer some compelling benefits. They print, copy, scan and fax. One machine does the work of four, costs less and takes up a quarter of the space. Very convenient, very practical.

Single-function. They do one thing and they do it very well. These print powerhouses are optimized to deliver high-volume output and deliver it fast. We're talking 40+ pages per minute fast with monthly duty cycles of 80,000 pages and beyond. Very handy when you've got multiple users or one who prints like crazy on a regular basis. Happily, both options are available with high-performance features to meet whatever other needs that matter to you. Yes, you're now free to consider those.

HELP Solutions for the Large Enterprise Business

Beyond CMYK. If you've toyed with the idea of bringing color printers to the forefront of your business, now's a great time. The prices have been dropping steadily for years. The prevalence of high-yield ink and toner brings down the TCO, plus the return on investment of color business materials figures to be formidable. But possibly the best reason to make the switch is the fact that when it comes to speed, print quality, paper-handling, ease of operation and management tools, color printers have come a long way.

Print quality. Razor sharp text. Vivid, true-to-life color. Smooth-textured gray-scale photos with fine detail, lifelike shadows and highlights. Higher end models deliver color output that graphics pros wouldn't hesitate to show.

Speed. Thanks to single-pass vs. four-pass operation, today's color printers can print at the same clip as good corporate monochrome lasers, some clocking upwards of 25 ppm.

Ease of operation. Intuitive control panels are designed so that even a casual user can walk up and make easy work of any print job.

Management Tools. Access-control software makes managing color expenses easy. Some programs regulate printing by business application, others by user authorization.

Beyond CMYK? You bet. Today's printers bring results and benefits that go well beyond the wonderful world of color.

HELP Smart Solutions

What hackers HATE.

So, you've been diligent about backing up your data. Good for you. But what happens if that trusty flash drive, laptop or external hard drive falls into the wrong hands? Identity theft. Data breaches. Leaked docs. You know, the kinds of things that can have devastating effects on individuals, cripple entire organizations and threaten national security. Luckily there's an easy solution. Encryption.

Just what is encryption anyway?

Encryption is the process of turning intelligible information into useless information for anyone who doesn't have authorized access. Once data is encrypted, you need a key (password) to get at it. In other words, no password, no data for you.

256-bit AES. Today many things come with encryption built in and 256-bit AES is the gold standard. Why? Let's just say hackers would have to crunch literally trillions of combinations to crack a 256-bit encrypted code.

Beyond peace of mind. Encryption can protect sensitive data whether it's stored on a device, e-mail server or corporate network. Nice as that sense of security may be, you should know that in certain situations, encryption's not just a smart move, it's actually the law.

No Doubt: It Pays to Backup.

THE LAST WORD

"Hey, here's an idea, print it yourself!"

Aside from not having to shell out cash to the outside world for print and design services, there are definite perks to be realized by bringing your printing in-house, not the least of which are freedom and flexibility.

Printing your own means there's no need to lock into specified print runs. You can change things on the fly. Print what you need, when you need it. What about the creative? Thanks to some pretty intuitive DIY marketing software it's as good as done. Of course all this is possible thanks to a new breed of unbelievably cool printers. With one of these babies, it's never been easier to create top-notch business materials and marketing collateral right under your own roof.

Speaking of cool printers, our August issue is chock full of 'em. Inkjets, lasers, monochromes, single-functions, multifunctions and more, loaded with performance and features that fit the bill no matter what you're printing. Believe me, inside there's a printer with your name on it.

What else? High-performance paper. Backup. Power protection. Consumables. Tech goodies galore. Plus, deals to make you smile. After all, it is Tech Solutions.
